

TUR: Are you worried about getting arrested?

NUNBERG: I think it would be funny if they arrested me.

TUR: If you're held in contempt of court, wouldn't you have higher legal bills?

NUNBERG: I think it would be really, really funny that they wanted to arrest me because I didn't want to spend 80 hours going over e-mails that I had with Steve Bannon and Roger Stone.

TUR: Steve bannon, Roger Stone, hope hicks, who else is on the list of e-mails that they want from you?

NUNBERG: Oh, Katy, did I ever communicate with carter page? Do you think I communicated with corey lewandowski? After november 1st, 2016? I mean, korey was the one who screwed me over and got me fired from the campaign.

TUR: What about Steve Keith Schiller, Donald Trump?

NUNBERG: For them to ask me about communications with Donald Trump, the president of the united states, that is over the hill. That is too much for mr. Mueller to ask for. It's for. It is ridiculous.

TUR: Sam, let me ask a question. Don't interrupt me. Were in the campaign early on and you said Corey Lewandowski helped get you fired but you were there when Donald Trump decided whether he was going to run for president and why he was going to run for president and what sort of positions he would hold when he decided to run for p interested in finding out what you know about that time early on?

NUNBERG: Yeah. They asked about it. They certainly did.

TUR: What did they ask?

NUNBERG: And it was ridiculous.

TUR:What did they ask?

NUNBERG: If I could tell you, once again, Katy, Donald Trump being involved in conservative politics was not good for his business. By the way, I think my lawyer is going to dump me right now.

TUR:Why -- what do they ask you about Donald Trump taking policy positions early on?

NUNBERG: They asked me if Donald Trump took positions and he flat out told me he was taking positions because of his business. And I will tell you he never told me that. He did not.

TUR: What else have they been asking you?

NUNBERG: They asked -- you know what they asked, which is ridiculous to me, they asked things like did you hear people speaking Russian in the Trump office?

TUR: Who?

NUNBERG: Katy, I did not hear people speaking Russian in the Trump office, okay. That is ridiculous. They asked things like --

TUR: Keep going.

NUNBERG: They asked things like did you hear -- did you hear about Trump tower moscow? No. I never heard about Trump tower moscow? Never heard it about it once. And I can tell you, -- Katy, you're not going to like to hear this and your audience isn't going to like to hear, this but when Donald Trump took positions where he said that Vladimir Putin -- that Vladimir Putin was better off fighting syria against ISIS compared to Barack Obama, he was right. Because you don't remember this, or you don't want to talk about it, but ISIS was chopping Americans' heads off. And Trump was right about it. He was intuitively right about it.

TUR: I'll leave your allegations against me and the viewers of network to decide. I would like to ask this, a gop primary would not have been a fan of Russia or Vladimir Putin. It was not a popular opinion to be friendly towards Russia or putin among republicans very early on. Why is it not relevant for the special counsel to ask why Donald Trump was so friendly to shrewd mere putin early on? It confused a whole lot of people back then and he is still pretty friendly. It is confusing a whole lot of people now.

NUNBERG: And by the way, I agree with you. And I think Trump made a major mistake. I think that Vladimir Putin should face serious consequences for what he did during the election. But what i've also said to you and i've said repeatedly is Trump was more than -- if Vladimir Putin wanted to release Hillary Clinton e-mails and by the way she should have protected her e-mails, it is fine to me, and if Trump wanted to get that out -- and remember you asked that question to him. If Trump wanted to get the e-mails out, that is fine. Because she should have protected her e-mails. And do you think Russia was the only one who stole her e-mails? Do you think Russia was the only one that hacked her e-mails? Do you think that china didn't? Or china didn't? Or israel didn't? Of course they did.

TUR: I'm still curious, since you had gone on the record on your network saying this investigation was not a waste of taxpayer money, that this investigation was going along in a professional way. Why you would decide to do this all of a sudden and why you would decide, I imagine against the advice -- against the advice of your own lawyer.

NUNBERG: Yeah.

TUR: I imagine your lawyer is telling you not to rip up a subpoena. . And I think Robert Mueller will be pretty -- and why are you doing?

NUNBERG: Because I'm not going to produce them every e-mail I had with Steve Bannon and Roger Stone from november of 2015. Why do I have to produce them all of my communications. It is ridiculous.

TUR:Are you ready to go to jail?

NUNBERG: I'm not going to go to jail.

TUR: How do you know you won't go to jail. You are publicly snubbing your nose as the special counsel and the investigation. If they don't do anything for you, they would allow anyone else to snub their nose at this investigation. All sorts of people who are being interviewed or go in front of the grand jury.

NUNBERG: Katy, maybe people should start snubbing their nose because the way they are asking for communications that I had with Steve Bannon, with Roger Stone, to me is too much. They want me to go in next friday -- this friday, excuse me. And they want me to go in and they want me to testify against my mentor who did nothing. He did nothing wrong, roger, okay. He did nothing wrong. In fact, he was treated terribly by Donald Trump. And by the way, we cost him a lot of money, roger and me, as you know, correct.

TUR: Did you find an e-mail in the last 24 hours that made you worried, an e-mail you didn't want to hand over, a text mess you didn't want to hand over.

NUNBERG: No -- is there a question in your ear.

TUR: No. I came up off the top of my head.

NUNBERG: No. I did not go over of my e-mails since i've been contacted by them. And you know the other thing that really upset me -- not upset me, I was very low on this list, okay. I got to spend $50,000 on legal fees. And I was very low this list and then suddenly when they called me -- you know when they called me, Katy, after michael wolff's book came out and they asked me a bunch of things in there about roger and me after we were fired. And as you remember, when you covered that campaign, Katy, Roger and me were treated terribly and trust me we weren't colluding with Trump and it wasn't some smart idea to be fired and then we would get the e-mails from Russia. If Roger and me were there, Katy, we wouldn't have had the Benghazi parents there, we would have had little Clinton's illegitimate black child there is the the second debate and the women there.

TUR: Sam, hold on. Sam, hold on. What you are doing is surprising to say the least. But you sat there in that room being questioned about Mueller's investigators, I want to hear directly from you, do you think that they have something on the president?

NUNBERG: I think they may.

TUR: What?

NUNBERG: I think he may have done something during the election. But I don't know that for sure.

TUR: Why do you think that?

NUNBERG: I can't explain it unless you were in there.

TUR: Explain the atmosphere.

NUNBERG: The way they ask questions about anything I heard after I was fired from the campaign to the general election to even november 1 is insinuated to me that he may have done something. And he may well have.

TUR: If you got that sense from the special counsel investigators, why would you not want to cooperate with them. If you got a sense that something happened --

NUNBERG: Because I'm not interested in handing all of my e-mails over that I communicated with Steve Bannon and with other people and with I'm not interested in it. And I'm not interested in themminthem insinuating that roger did something bad.

TUR: Sam I want to be clear --

NUNBERG: yes.

TUR: I want to be clear. I want to be very clear. Has anybody at all contacted you in the last few days, the last 24 hours to encourage you not to talk to the special counsel -- no.

Or to tell you not to talk to the special counsel or to give you a reason why it would not behoove you to talk to the special counsel?

NUNBERG: I decided this, Katy --

TUR: I'm sorry, the grand jury.

NUNBERG: A couple of hours ago I decided that when I was going over all of my e-mails. And I was going over how long and arduous this process was going to be and I was just like, this is ridiculous. Why do I have to give Robert Mueller my random e-mails with Steve Bannon and Roger Stone? Why?

TUR: Is anybody from the Trump white house contacted you?

NUNBERG: No.

TUR: Has the president contacted you?

NUNBERG: No.

TUR: Has anybody from Trump's legal team contacted you?
No.

TUR: Has Roger Stone told you not to go to talk to the grand jury?

NUNBERG: No.

TUR: Has Steve Bannon told you not to go talk to the grand jury.

NUNBERG: No. And by the way, Steve Bannon, I spoke to Steve Bannon for the first time last week after I went in there and the first -- and I spoke to him and Steve and I were discussing about how we
